INTERNATIONAL TRAINING COURSE ON "METCAPPLUS VISIUALIZATION PACKAGE and TAC2BUFR SOFTWARE"

(Alanya, Turkey, 24-28 April 2017)

COURSE INFORMATION

1. General information

One of the most important steps of weather forecasting is to visualize observations from different sensors and centers and combine them with numerical models to simplify the forecasters heavy tasks. Observation types may vary from synoptic codes from traditional stations to scanning data from brand new radar systems.

The Turkish State Met Service (TSMS) developed a visualization package named MetcapPlus (Meteorological Communication and Application Package) by using its own capabilities and staff to handle huge data from observation systems and numerical models. This package has already been developed to fulfil demands from the users.

TSMS are keen to share this package with the other Met Services and state entities, like universities, free of charge. MetcapPlus has already been donated and installed to the centers of many demanding organizations including universities.

WMO has defined schedules to switch from traditional code formats to BUFR in some observation types like synoptic and upper-air. Some Met Service are still unable to send their observations in BUFR format to GTS for various reasons. The software package developed by TSMS converts the Traditional Alphanumerical Codes (TAC) to BUFR format and sends both created BUFR bulletin and classical bulletin to the Regional Telecommunication Hubs (RTHs). This small package may also be used by any meteorological organization.

2. Objectives

The objectives of the course on MetcapPlus are to provide information about the package and make the participants competent in:

- Installation of the package
- Creating user defined maps
- Creating actual charts
- Creating NWP charts
- Creating forecast graphics for any point
- Using satellite data from EUMETSAT to create different products
- Using radar data to create charts
- Combining actual data with NWP, satellite and radar data.
- Skewt diagram
- Aviation charts
- Brief information about BUFR code
- Converting TAC synoptic observations to BUFR
- Converting TAC upper-level observations to BUFR
- TAC2BUFR RTH connection settings
