€50,000 travel grant pot to help you attend the world's biggest and best meteorological technology exhibition.

To ensure that as many of the right and relevant research scientists and national meteorological service providers as possible can attend Meteorological Technology World Expo 2015, we have created a €50,000 travel grant fund.

Any employee of a government-owned National Meteorological Service and any member of a national research institute or university can apply for a grant that will cover all or some of their travel arrangements to Meteorological Technology World Expo in Brussels, Belgium from 13-15 October 2015. It is our expectation to fly or train in up to 100 meteorologists or researchers from around the world.

The decision as to who is awarded a travel grant will be entirely at the discretion of the show organizers. Successful candidates will be chosen based on their significance in the industry according to the organizers. No appeals can be made. Any additional travel costs outside of the money awarded are to be covered by the candidate; the organizers are not responsible for your food or beverage consumption or your insurance, safety or belongings. We are also not responsible for organizing any additional travel arrangements such as taxis to and from airports. Failure to attend the event for the days scheduled will mean you are liable to refund the entire travel costs. We reserve the right to cancel your travel arrangements without explanation.

How to apply

To apply for a travel grant, please e-mail James Taylor, head of audience development, at james.taylor@ukipme.com. Include your full contact details, employer's details, a 50-word explanation as to why you wish to attend the world's largest meteorological technology exhibition, plus a reference contact at your employer.

Closing date for submissions is 25 September 2015, although we reserve the right to bring this deadline forward if the fund is exhausted earlier.
